Numerical Percolation Study of a Japanese inter-firm trading network

Hirokazu Kawamoto

Tokyo Institute of Technology

Email:kawamoto@smp.dis.titech.ac.jp

Abstract

We apply the percolation theory for a Japanese inter-firm trading network consisting of 3 million links, in which links are removed randomly. We find typical properties of transition confirming the universality class and finite size scaling relations. These results are discussed from the viewpoint of network structure. In addition, we discuss robustness of Japanese firms by focusing on the critical cluster.